for this was the twenty-seventh in the series of sick-bables' outlings on the Floating Playground. Its destination was Eugene Buck's Oriental Grove, on Great Neck. Long Island Sound, one of the very best appointed picnic places within salling distance of the great metropolis, Oriental Grove has excellent appointments of a day's diversion, and it is a favorite with New Yorkers of all classes.
There are thirty acres of clear maple woods, with picnic tables, a dozen big sups, a merry-go-round, photography, shooting range, dancing pavilion and restaurant, and an eight-acre basebail ground back of the grove. The bathing is the best around the neighborhood, bating and fishing excellent, and Mr.
Buck's management is very good.
The sick bables of Brooklyn will be treated to another special outling, startton street, Brooklyn, at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, and going up the
